COMMITTEES TO MEET THURSDAY

FOURTH OF JULY ACCOUNTS TO BE SQUARED UP, DECORATIONS ARE BEING TAKEN DOWN.

Red Jacket Fourth of July celebration will hold a final meeting Thursday evening, when affairs pertaining to the recent celebration will be closed up. The committees are anxious that all accounts be presented at this meeting.

A force of men under the direction of Harry Hocking commenced work today removing the decorations. It is expected they will complete their task by this evening.

The Red Jacket carnival came to a successful close Saturday evening, despite the fact that the rain interfered to some extent with the program arranged. The crowds were as large as any night of the carnival except the Fourth and the shows were well patronized, continuing until a very late hour. The Red Jacket band was present Saturday evening, but the rain prevented the dancing on the pavement, fireworks and other features.

The carnival tents were taken down immediately after the shows closed, and the company left early Sunday morning for the Canadian Soo.

EARLY SETTLER PASSES AWAY

EVENTFUL CAREER OF FRANK A. KOHLHAAS BROUGHT TO CLOSE EARLY THIS MORNING.

The copper country lost another of those sterling citizens who have been prominently identified with its progress for more than half a century, when Frank A. Kohlhaas died at his home, corner of Sixth and Pine, about 7 o'clock this morning. Mr. Kohlhaas' health had been failing for several months, but it was not until about two weeks ago that he was forced to take to his bed. His death is attributed to a complication of diseases.

Mr. Kohlhaas was born in 1835 at Mayen, Prussia, and when nineteen years of age, came to America and located in Detroit, working as a butcher. Three years later he came to the copper country, locating at the Cott mine, where he also worked as a butcher. In those days the occupation was a far different one than at present. The cattle had to be driven to the copper country from points in Wisconsin. It was necessary to kill the steer, dress and cure the beef, features of the trade that have given way to the march of progress. Mr. Kohlhaas was possessed of rugged health necessary to endure the hardships incident to the bringing of the cattle into the copper country, which often required a foot journey of several days duration. After leaving the Cott mine, Mr. Kohlhaas spent about two years at Copper Falls.

The deceased came to Calumet in 1892, at first being employed at Shears Meat Market, which is remembered by the old timers. He remained there seven years, and in 1892 formed a partnership with Francis Ward, formerly marshal of the village of Red Jacket. Mr. Ward retired after the partnership had continued ten years and Mr. Kohlhaas continued in business until 1901, when his son-in-law, George K. Fox, succeeded him.

Mr. Kohlhaas was many times honored by being elected to offices of public trust. He served two terms as township treasurer and also held the office of treasurer of the village of Red Jacket. He was always interested in village politics and was several times elected to membership on the council.

Mr. Kohlhaas was of a quiet, kindly disposition and numbered his friends by the score. He was a member of the Calumet Lodge of Elks and of the Hermann Sons.

Besides Mrs. Kohlhaas the following children survive: Mrs. George K. Fox, Mrs. John G. Dr. Otto H. Frank J. Kohlhaas, Mrs. Geo. Craze, Miss Martha and Clayton, all of Calumet. One brother, Jacob, who resides in Minnesota, also survives.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

NOT A HARD JOB.

Rastus was honest and industrious, but in the opinion of the new minister unsociable.

"Neighborhood, my dear friend," said the domine, "is brotherhood. Do you take the trouble to see much of your neighbors?"

"Ah reckon she sees as much of them as dey sees of me," Rastus replied.
